

---

MEMBERSHIP BROCHURE

---

Retirement in Canada is Changing

The whole concept of retirement in Canada is changing. Different attitudes, lifestyles, and demographics are driving this societal change. Retirement planning is not just about finances, it is also about lifestyle. Whether you're a financial planner, a life coach, a retirement planner or a Human Resources professional, your RPAC membership will be an invaluable asset to your practice.

Leaders in Retirement Planning

RPAC is the leading nationwide source for networking and professional development among professionals in this new era of retirement planning. Our members represent a wide range of professionals in the area of retirement planning in Canada. Expertise ranges from financial planning, health and wellness, relationships, housing, work and leisure.

Benefits of Individual Membership

Open to professionals who provide services and education on retirement issues. ($173.25)

- Earn Continuing Education Credits
- Attend the Annual Conference held in different locations throughout Canada. Members receive a discount on the conference registration fee
- Learn about issues that will have a profound effect on your practice and your clients
- Earn the Professional Retirement Planner designation (PRP)
- Network with other professionals in your field
- Profile your service on RPAC's website
- Link your website to RPAC's website
- Receive RPAC's semi-annual newsletter
- Access the revised library of materials relating to retirement
- Receive the Good Times magazine as part of RPAC membership.

Benefits of Corporate Membership

Open to any organization or corporation that provides services and education to the public on retirement issues. ($467.25)

- Provides greater value once there are three employees from same firm
- To add more than three employees, add $52.50 for each additional employee
- Provides visibility for your firm on RPAC's website
- Link to your website on RPAC's website
- Present workshops at the National Conference and local Chapter events
- Promote your organization to other professionals
- Opportunity for your employees to network with other professionals
- Receive RPAC's semi-annual newsletter
- Receive the Good Times magazine as part of RPAC membership.

PRP Designation

The Professional Retirement Planner (PRP) designation assures the public that the bearer has met, and maintains a high level of education, experience, commitment to a holistic approach to retirement planning and adheres to RPAC's Code of Ethics.

Any active member of RPAC in good standing who is a professional involved in the field of retirement planning can earn the PRP designation.